

Jamila Furtch is a licensed professional Counselor for the state of GA, with over 9 years of clinical experience ranging from intense inpatient care to women who have a long history of substance abuse attempting to regain custody of their children. Currently, Jamila is the Program Coordinator for Wellspring Living's Independent Living Program where she serves women of the ages 18-30 who have been sexually exploited or vulnerable for sexual exploitation. In her role as Program Coordinator, she is required to provide a safe and holistic environment for women who are vulnerable. With her innate calming and proactive problem solving abilities, she has been a great asset to the Wellspring Living family.
